HONGKONG, JANUARY 23rd, 1911.

No civil servant has ever left the shores of this Colony with such remarkable manifestations of admiration and esteem as have marked the departure of Sir HENRY MAY. Indeed, few Governors have been more highly honoured. It is the more remarkable when we think of Sir HENRY MAY, as (in the words of the Chinese address) a man of austere countenance, sparing of his words and of his smiles, a "man to be feared indeed." In the European address there is no mention of the infrequency of Sir HENRY's smiles, but when it speaks of him as "a fearless official—fearless in the discharge of duty—one who never courted favour, and who therefore won respect—an upright public servant—a strong man," much the same sentiments are represented. We refer to these features because they serve, we think, to emphasise the sincerity of the admiration which has been inspired in the public mind by the good and solid work Sir HENRY MAY has done in this Colony with a single eye to the welfare of the whole community. The addresses presented from the European and Chinese communities respectively just before his embarkation fittingly dwell upon the high purpose which has dignified all his acts, as well as upon the moral courage he has shown in many critical situations. There was no pretence to an adequate description of his manifold services to the Colony in the addresses presented to him on Saturday, but among conspicuous instances of his foresight and moral courage we recall two which have escaped mention, and we may perhaps be allowed to draw attention to them here. Both were furnished in the first period of his administration of the Government, and they are the more notable on that account. We allude first to the advice he gave to the Secretary of State for the Colonies which led to the construction of the Kowloon railway as a Government enterprise. He recognised that the construction of this railway was fast becoming of vital importance to the Colony, and assuredly it needed no little courage in an Officer administering the Government for the first time to advocate with all the powers of persuasion at his command a departure from previous practice which must at first Downing Street who control the affairs of the Colony, and, perhaps, made them wonder whether we had not at the head of affairs here a Socialist of the deepest dye. We have yet to wait, it may be a longtime, for the full fruits of that prudence and foresight, but when we call to mind the project which at the time seemed to threaten the welfare and prosperity of the Colony, but which, thanks to the decision to accelerate the construction of this railway, have now happily ceased to cause the Colony anxiety, we can appreciate to some extent the value of the effort he made. The time must surely come, as the railway system develops in Southern China, when the Colony will have much greater reason to rank this among Sir HENRY MAY's most notable achievements. Mention of his moral courage must also call to mind the Ordinance which reserves the Peak district as a place of residence for Europeans. It was, as Sir HENRY MAY himself described it at the time, a somewhat delicate subject, since it had the appearance of class legislation against the Chinese. For the passage of this Ordinance the European community is indebted no less to the moral courage of Sir HENRY Government, in authorising the introduction of the Bill, than to his tactful presentation of the very sound arguments in its favour so that they appealed to the practical commonsense of the majority of the leading Chinese and thus secured the passage of the Bill without opposition from their representatives in the Council. The Address presented to him on Saturday is proof that Sir HENRY MAY has enjoyed the confidence of the Chinese community in a marked degree. Though they knew him for an able official of the highest integrity. If he was instrumental in securing for the European population this one exclusive, and very necessary privilege, they will not forget that he has also been instrumental in securing for the Chinese community concessions which would not have been accorded by the Government to a community of Europeans. At this distance from the events which give Sir HENRY MAY his special claims to distinction they can all be reviewed in their proper perspective, and the whole British community must share in the pride which Sir HENRY MAY must ever feel when he reads the Chinese address in which many of the services he has rendered to ensure their welfare and consentment are so handsomely acknowledged; for though it was intended as a personal compliment, it is, at the same time a valuable tribute to the confidence of the Chinese community in the Government of the Colony.

Cable communication with Japan is restored.

H.M.S. Newcastle arrived in port on Saturday.

Regulations made regarding the firing of crackers during Chinese New Year, and for the regulation of traffic during the days of the race meeting at Happy Valley, are published in the current Gazette.

Mr. Hallifax dealt with two Chinese at the Magistrate's on Saturday for offending against the Opium Ordinance. A woman who was convicted of selling the drug was ordered to pay a fine of $50, and a man who was found with a quantity in his possession was fined $50.

Dr. Victor G. Heiser, Principal Civil Medical Officer of the Philippines, in his last quarterly report just issued, states that the state of public health is more satisfactory at the present time than it has been at any time during the past ten years, which, he says, makes it possible to commence the new year under very much more favourable auspices than heretofore.

The English mail of the 24th December was delivered in London on the 20th inst.

We understand that Mr. Cecil Clementi will act as Colonial Secretary pending the appointment of a successor to Sir Henry May.

The Colonial Treasurer's financial statement for the month of November shows that the balance of assets and liabilities on October 31st was $143,789.65, and this amount, together with $543,792.43, revenue for November, makes a total of $687,582.13. Deducting the month's expenditure of $594,290.88, the balance is $93,291.25. Reimbursement due by Railway Construction Account, stands at $1,269,592.26, which, with the addition of the balance previously mentioned, shows the balance of assets (General Account) as $1,362,883.51.

An unemployed sailor named Maurice Cummings appeared before Mr. Hallifax at the Magistrate's on Saturday charged with behaving in a disorderly manner in Aberdeen Street.
Defendant, who was recently convicted on a similar charge, told his Worship that he had been promised a job on a sailing ship in a few days. His meeting with a few friends, with whom he took a "wet drop," resulted in his being ignorant of what happened, but if he were discharged he would not appear before the Court again. His Worship gave defendant the chance he asked, but warned him that if he appeared again he would be heavily punished.

DEATH OF ADMIRAL GÜHLER.

Widespread regret was felt in the Colony on Saturday when it was learned that Rear-Admiral Gübler, Commanding the German East Asiatic Cruiser Squadron, had that morning died at the Peak Hospital. The news came as a painful surprise to most people and as a shock to those who knew him intimately, as the injury which induced him to enter the Peak Hospital as a patient was not of a nature likely to prove fatal.

It will be remembered that when the Schern-horst cruiser squadron visited Hongkong last month Rear-Admiral Gübler made an official landing at Blake Pier, and some days later, on the 15th, when landing at Murray Pier with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer he slipped on the gangway and fractured his ankle. He went to the Peak Hospital for treatment, and was apparently progressing favourably until some ten days ago when he contracted high fever. Drs. Müller and Jusi attended the patient, and his orderlies took the place of the nurses in ministering to his needs. The form of the attack did not manifest itself for some time, but on Thursday internal hemorrhage was probably due to some fruit or liquid supplied to him. Even then the case was not regarded as serious, but on Friday the severe hemorrhage experienced gave little hope for recovery, and the collapse which followed preceded the end. He fell asleep and passed peacefully away at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning.

The deceased Admiral, who had had a distinguished career in the Navy, came to the East first in 1901 as German Naval attaché at Tokyo, a post on which he held for three years.
Then he returned to Germany and was teacher in the Naval Academy at Kiel, afterwards being assigned the command of the cruiser Prinz Herrich in the Home Fleet. Subsequently he was transferred to the command of the cruiser Kaiser Karl der Grosse, and later was appointed chief of staff in the North Sea Station at Wilhelmshaven, being raised to the rank of admiral in 1907. Promotion followed in 1908, when he became second Admiral in the Second Squadron of the Home Fleet. The decorations of the deceased officer included the Crown and Crossed Swords (for service against the Arabs in 1883), the Red Eagle Third Class, and the Crown Second Class.

Admiral Gübler, who was only 51 years of age, was predeceased by his wife who died while he was at Tokyo, and leaves no relatives but his aged mother to mourn his demise. His death, however, will be regretted throughout the Far East, not only by foreign residents but by the Chinese official classes with whom he had come in contact. In Hongkong the sad event was marked by signs of mourning.
The flags at Government House, Headquarters House, Naval Yard, and on the war ships of various nationalities in the harbour were halfmasted, an example which was followed by the mercantile houses in the city, while several functions arranged for Saturday afternoon were postponed out of respect for the gallant officer who had passed away.

The regatta under the auspices of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club was postponed, while the official dinner at Government House in honour of Rear-Admiral Kawashima, was cancelled.
A dance which had been arranged to take place on board the Austrian cruiser was abandoned, and we are informed that Rear-Admiral Kawashima's "at home" on the Japanese flag-ship to have taken place this afternoon has been postponed.

We learn that on the wish of the relations the remains of the late Rear-Admiral Gübler will be transferred to Germany. To-day at noon the coffin will be on view at the German Consulate.
Sailors from S.M.S. Luchs will mount guard of honour. The funeral procession will leave the German Consulate on Tuesday the 24th inst. at 2.30 p.m., proceeding to St. John's Cathedral, where the funeral service will take place. From the Cathedral, the procession will start for the Naval Dock Yard, wherefrom the coffin will be transferred by S.M.S. Zwingen to the German steamer.

PEKING, January 21st.

Several deaths from plague have taken place outside Peking and in various parts of North China, while at a village near Chefoo a serious epidemic has occurred. The practical isolation of Peking is under discussion, and as a consequence much unnecessary alarm prevails. The Tohai of Harbin has been cashiered as the result of Russo-Japanese protests against his obstruction of plague measures. The Government is considering the Russian suggestion for the complete isolation of Manchuria where upwards of a hundred are dying daily.

PROFESSOR GROSSI'S ENTERTAIN-MENT.

Professor Grossi, and Mlle. René, his thoughtreading medium, gave a second performance at the Theatre on Saturday evening. Neither on Thursday nor on Saturday was the entertainment patronised as largely as it merits. Professor Grossi easily outshines Nicola, who has been the star of the entertainment. Last night Professor Grossi among other things exposed Nicola's milkcan trick, which is as simple as most tricks when you know them. The thought-reading part of the entertainment is perhaps the most mystifying of all. People in the audience were invited to set tasks for the medium, and the promptitude and accuracy with which they were fulfilled by Mlle. René evoked hearty applause. The concluding part of the entertainment consisted of some very successful and amusing hypnotic experiments. Professor Grossi and Mlle.
René gave their final performance in Hongkong to-night. Among those who have attended either of the performances already given there can be only one opinion, and that is that the entertainment reaches a very high level of excellence and is well worth seeing.

HARVESTON'S CIRCUS COMING.

Fresh from a well-earned holiday in his native land, and looking hale and hearty, the genial Colonel "Bob" Love has arrived in Hongkong as the herald of Harveston's Circus, which will come here about the 8th prox. The Colonel, who was prime with the latest Australian sporting intelligence, is on his way to Canton, where he intends to approach the Viceroy to endeavour to get permission for the Circus to show in that city and also to get official protection should the rowdy element become troubling. En route from the Philippines the Circus will show for a few nights here, and with the many new turns which will be provided the Colonel feels sure that the performance will be more highly appreciated than it has ever been. "Among other artists," he said, "we have the man with the bottle."
"Rather an anomaly to bring to Hongkong," he said, "asked the jocular Colonel, "But our man's bottle," he continued, "is filled with pure comedy, not with the adulterated liquor which is alarming the members of your Sanitary Board.
He gives all who visit him a plentiful supply, and although they get more than enough of this intoxicant, they are none the worse next day." In conclusion the Colonel said the Circus had just ended a successful season in the Philippines, and provided they get permission to show in Canton he is confident that the fame of his combination will be greatly enhanced.

CHINESE IN CANADA.

During the first seven months of the present fiscal year, from April to October inclusive, Chinese arrivals in Canada totalled 3,536. Of these 2,863 paid the head tax of £100 each, making a total contribution to the public treasury from this source of no less than £286,300. The number who were admitted as exempt totalled 663. Of these 170 were classed as Japanese and Hindu immigrants. Figures show that the arrivals are now very restricted. Since the agreement entered into three years ago with Japan 1,457 Japanese have entered Canada, or less than 500 per year. The influx of Hindus, which was assuming alarming proportions two years ago, has practically stopped, in consequence of the restrictive legislation adopted by the Government. Since April 1st of last year only fifteen Hindus have entered the country.

THE PORTUGUESE REPUBLIC.

LONDON, January 21st.

It is reported from Lisbon that the Foreign Minister, in a speech stated that the Republic would be strengthened as a result of the recent strikes, which ended by increasing mutual confidence between the workers and the authorities.

The rumours of foreign intervention were unfounded.

British and American firms, the Minister said, had made proposals which would enable Portugal to carry out a scheme for the reorganisation of her fleet without sacrifice.

MENT BILL.

The Reichstag in the debate on the ican and Canadian representatives regarding trade reciprocity.

SUPREME COURT.

Saturday, January 21st.

IN CRIMINAL JURISDICTION.

BEFORE HIS HONOUR SIR FRANCIS PIGGOTT (CHIEF JUSTICE).

MURDER CHARGE.

Ling Fat and Wong Kam, on remand, again appeared before the Court on a charge of wilful murder.

The jurors were: Messrs. H. W. Potley (foreman), E. Mowfang, O. B. Owen, H. Rede, M. Obromski, R. A. Abraham and A. A.
Barros.

Sir Henry Berkeley, K.C., instructed by Mr.
F. B. L. Bowley, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, and the prisoners were defended by the Hon.
Dr. Ho Kai.

After the addresses of Counsel, and the summing up of his Lordship, the jury retired.
On returning into Court after an absence of about half an hour the Foreman announced that they were unanimous in finding Wong Kam guilty, but could not agree as to the other prisoner.

His Lordship asked them to again retire, and some fifteen minutes later they again appeared in Court and the Foreman announced that they had decided to give Ling Fat the benefit of the doubt, and find him not guilty.

The first prisoner was discharged, and his Lordship called upon the other to show cause why he should not be sentenced to death.

Prisoner said he had nothing much to say.
It was two other men who killed the deceased, and not he. "I am a working man, and I would sooner you sentenced me to death than send me to prison."

Donning the black cap, his Lordship passed sentence of death.

The old saw so often quoted at home seems to be applicable to Hongkong at this season.
"As the day lengthens the cold strengthens." The weather has been cold enough to revive thoughts of snow, and the family hearth with a blazing fire has strong attractions these nights.

Sir Henry May is gone. He and his wife and family got a royal send-off on Saturday.
The regret which has been felt at their departure has been voiced in many places during the past week and it is as sincere as it is general. Good wishes follow them to the Fiji Islands.

A well-deserved compliment to the Chinese amah was paid by Sir Henry May on Wednesday when he acknowledged the great part taken by such a domestic in the training of his children. He described her as one of nature's gentlewomen. There must be many more like her in the Colony, though, of course, there are others.

The suggestion of the Chief Justice that the subject of hardships occasioned by man in offices and firms who happen to be working single-handed when the summons to attend the panel at the Supreme Court comes to them should be brought before the Chamber of Commerce with a view to representation being made to Government is one for which the commercial community ought to feel grateful. It suggests ways and means which had apparently not been contemplated before, and if nothing be done to act on the suggestion the commercial people who suffer have only themselves to blame.

Hongkong has been mystified and amused by Prof. Grossi, and the amusement has been contributed to largely by local people. When on Thursday night some score of people went down to the platform to offer themselves as hypnotic subjects it was noticeable that the two men from the dress circle sneaked off before the professor got his eye upon them (when they saw the exhibition afforded by the others. A mesmerised man in evening dress looks just as ridiculous as a man in ordinary attire. It must have been somebody with a sense of the humorous that wished the medium to go to the dress circle and select a gentleman seated between two ladies for her attention. She stepped up behind him and twirled his moustache. The victim stood it well and the audience roared.

The Chinese penchant for pictorial calendars is particularly noticeable these days. Every firm which caters in this direction is inundated with requests for these gifts, and some houses are literally besieged by crowds of waiting Chinese.
When personal application fails, the boy or other servant endeavours to enlist his employer's sympathies in action on his behalf. Needless to say, this works only where the master belongs to the griffin stage.

An interesting feature of the approach of Chinese New Year is the heavy mail which reaches here from America. The Chinese abroad do not forget their homeland and those they have left behind them, and they keep them in mind in a manner which is very acceptable to the recipients. The mail last week from the States was particularly heavy.

Our new cruiser has at length reached port.
The Newcastle seems much smaller than the illustrated ship which she replaces, but she looks slim and alert, and fitted for the part of scouting for the bigger fighting machines.

The school prize distributions are in full swing at present and his Excellency the Governor has a busy time addressing the youth of the Colony and also the parents and others interested in education. I am sure we shall all share the hope which His Excellency expressed the other day that the girls of China would not develop into women of the suffragette type. The striking sisterhood, as it is seen in Great Britain to-day, must appear something weird and wonderful to those of the fair sex who have been taught some of the old truths about woman's position and sphere.

The "Call of the East" has been heard and answered by the Filipino musicians which Mr.
Schwarzen introduced on the Pacific Mail steamer Manchuria. It was thought that a Filipino band on board would still further popularise the steamer among tourists. From a musical standpoint the innovation proved successful, but from a labour standpoint the experiment left much to be desired, and the musicians have decided in American phraseology that the "Philippines is the only country worth while." It has been suggested that if the Pacific Mail Steamship Company would install a cookpit, a monte game and a special deck for the accommodation of the better halves of the members of the orchestra on board its steamers, a few of the native sons of Orpheus might be induced to remain on board for more than one trip. Otherwise it looks as if the "Filipino orchestra" experiment will have to be relegated to the already well-stocked shelf of Filipino labour disappointments. However, the agents for the company will try again, and will send another band to Hongkong to meet the Manchuria before she leaves on her homeward voyage.

DEPARTURE OF SIR HENRY AND LADY MAY. PRESENTATIONS AT THE CITY HALL.

Magnificent send-off.

Sir Henry and Lady May, with the Misses May, have sailed for the Fiji Islands, where, as former Colonial Secretary, assumes the important post of Governor of the Islands and High Commissioner of the South Pacific. His departure, which has been anticipated with regret, not only because it meant the loss of an official who has been associated with all that stands for good government in the Colony, but because it also involved a distinct social loss to the community in which both he and Lady May have been so highly appreciated, was the occasion of a great popular demonstration on Saturday. During the week various sections and departments of the Civil Service and of social activities have taken farewell of Sir Henry and Lady May, but it was on Saturday that the Colony bade him and his wife and family farewell. A series of presentations took place in the City Hall at noon. Before that hour, St. George's Hall, the place set apart for the ceremony, was filled by a representative gathering of all sections of the community, and hundreds who did not venture inside lined the approaches to the building. A dais had been erected at the top of the hall, and to it, Sir Henry May, Lady May, and the Misses May were on entering the hall conducted by Sir Paul Chater. A minute later and the gathering rose a second time to greet His Excellency the Governor, who was not accompanied by Lady Lugard, as her Ladyship was still indisposed. The proceedings were commenced by Sir Paul Chater who read the Address presented by the Colony, the sentiments in which were received by frequent outbursts of applause. Sir Henry, on rising to reply, was overcome with emotion, and Mr. T. F. Hough had to express the acknowledgment, which the departing Colonial Secretary was unable to utter at the moment. Then followed the Chinese Address, which was read by Mr. Chan Kai Ming in a full resonant voice which did full justice to the eulogium and nicely turned compliments which characterized this presentation. Sir Henry, who was still visibly affected when he rose to reply to this Address, told a story "not for publication" with a view to regaining his composure, after which he expressed his appreciation of the Chinese, whom he had learned to know and to love. At the conclusion of his reply, Mrs. Keswick rose and in suitable language presented the Address and the handsome pendant subscribed by the community of Hongkong to Lady May. Her Ladyship, whose voice betrayed her emotion, thanked the community for their gift and for their kindness to her. This concluded the ceremony proper, when His Excellency the Governor called for three hearty cheers for Sir Henry and Lady May, which were heartily given, followed by the usual "tiger." Their friends and acquaintances and members of the community gathered round and shook hands with the departing official and his good lady and their family, after which they made their way to Blake Pier, where a dense crowd had assembled to see the last of them. The members of the Volunteer Reserve mustered in full force on the Pier, and Sir Henry shook hands with each and bade them good-bye. The huge strings of crackers erected here dominated the proceedings for a time, and after the departing family had stepped on the launch and it moved off the large company found voices in cheers and adieu long continued. A launch from which crackers were constantly exploded piloted the Aldenhams out of the harbour.

THE COLONIAL ADDRESS.

Sir Paul Chater said, in presenting the address:—We are met here to-day, Sir, to present to you on your departure from the Colony an Address from the community of Hongkong; and I am proud to think that the duty and privilege of reading the same to you has been conferred upon me.

The address was in the following terms:—

To Sir Francis Henry May, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George.

Sir,—On this the occasion of your departure from Hongkong to assume the dignity and title of Governor of Fiji and High Commissioner of the Western Pacific—to which high office you have been called by His Most Gracious Majesty the King—We, recognising as residents the meritorious work which you have done, during twenty-eight years spent in the service of the Colony, desire to demonstrate publicly our appreciation of your official career.

From the outset of your official career you have served with distinction.

Arriving here in 1883, after taking honours at the University, and undergoing twelve months preliminary training in the Colonial Office, you at once evinced the desire and the capacity to excel. The thoroughness with which you applied yourself to the study of the Chinese language, first at Canton and later at Peking, was favourably noted, and led to the duties of Assistant Registrar-General being assigned to you on your return to the Colony in 1886.

The able manner in which you discharged those duties received acknowledgment in promotion to the Assistant Colonial Secretaryship, and while holding that appointment your fitness to hold also the post of Private Secretary to the Governor was discerned by His Excellency Sir William Des Vaux, who availed himself of your services in that capacity, as did also Sir Francis Fleming and Sir William Digby-Barker, who successively administered the Government.

Promotion to leading positions in the Government service followed rapidly. After acting as Colonial Treasurer you received the substantive appointment of Captain Superintendent of Police.

In that position you displayed notable qualities of leadership.

During the most trying ordeal through which the Colony has ever passed—the plague visitation of 1894—the admirable work done by the force under your command owed much to the inspiring example of your personal intrepidity. In the following year the bold manner in which you dealt with the difficult situation created by a widespread labour strike showed you to be possessed of moral courage of a high order. The strike was, in effect, a protest against certain regulations enacted, at your instance, with a view to improving the health of the City. It assumed the aspect of a trial of strength with constituted authority. The firmness of the stand which you took up as the official responsible for the maintenance of the King's peace, and the success of your masterly dispositions made to ensure it, enabled the Government effectively to check a movement which threatened grave difficulties for the administration.

In recognition of the services rendered on these two occasions you were rewarded by a Companionship of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George.

At this time, in accordance with a recommendation made by you when giving evidence before the Retirement Committee in 1894, the supreme charge of the Fire Brigade was handed over to the Captain Superintendent of Police, with the result that greater economy was combined with increased efficiency. Another recommendation made by you at the same time bore fruit, later on, in the amalgamation, with like results, of the Civil and Police Departments under your sole superintendence.

In 1897 you found yourself called upon to display an even higher order of moral courage than duty had yet demanded. You found yourself face to face with deep seated corruption among the men under your command. You demanded that you should attack it openly—boldly. You responded to the call in a manner which, to the astonishment of all, was not only unflinching, but also unselfish. The steadiness of purpose manifested throughout the two years, during which you relaxed no efforts to trace and eradicate the evil which had been revealed, led to your an implacable enemy of all who fail in their duty to the traditions of British rule.

With a purified and more efficient force serving under you it fell to your lot to organise the police administration of the New Territories, and for two years from the time of their inclusion within the Colony's limits the task of instituting a new system of law and order mainly devolved upon you.

In 1902 the news of your well-deserved promotion to the Colonial Secretaryship was received with satisfaction, and the decision of the Home Authorities to entrust you with the responsibilities of that office, administering the Government during the period intervening between the departure of Sir Henry Blake and the arrival of his successor Sir Matthew Nathan, was hailed as a fitting tribute to your proved administrative capacity. The result fully justified the confidence reposed in you. As deputy for the King's Representative you conducted the affairs of the Colony with dignity and ability. Three times since you have administered in the Governor's stead, each time with conspicuous success, and, in the intervening periods, the whole-hearted manner in which you have placed your experience at the disposal of succeeding Governors has earned their warmest acknowledgments, and received recognition from your Sovereign in elevation to a Knight Commander of the Order. And here we cannot refrain from alluding to the help which you have invariably received, throughout the greater part of your career, from your wife, Lady May, whose unfailing tact and kindness endeared her to every section of the community.

In various important capacities you have shown your interest in the serious side of our social life.

Amidst a host of other duties you found time to serve as a Volunteer, recognising such service as a plain duty to the State, and as President of the Reserve Association you have encouraged others to follow your example.

In the domain of outdoor recreation, as Steward of the Jockey Club, as a Commodore for eleven years of the Royal Hongkong Yacht Club, as a keen race rider, polo player, and good all-round shot, you have proved yourself a versatile and enthusiastic sportsman.

Sir, although we desire to demonstrate our appreciation of your manifold services, we do not imagine that they can adequately be described within the limits of a farewell address, and no more recital of particular achievements can truly indicate the full value of your work. The full value of a man's work cannot be reckoned apart from the spirit animating it, and the high purposes, underlying and inspiring yours has dignified all your acts.

You leave us poorer by the loss of a fearless official—fearless in the discharge of duty—one who never courted favour and who therefore won respect—an upright public servant—a strong man.

Though it will still be your happiness to labour for your Sovereign in other spheres of activity, your best years have been devoted to the service of your country in this Colony, and the Colony's gratitude goes out to you now as we wish you good-bye and God-speed. (Loud applause.)

SIR HENRY MAY'S REPLY.

Sir Henry May rose to reply, but was overcome with emotion and had to resume his seat. Mr. T. F. Hough, at his request, read his acknowledgments in the following terms:—

Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen,—This is a day that I have long dreaded—the day when I am called upon to say good-bye to Hongkong. Here I have lived the best years of my life, immersed in work more interesting with each succeeding year, happy in the devoted help of the wife I found in my midst, surrounded by a loving family and cheered by friends whose place in my affections can never be filled by others. (Applause.) And now that I must take leave of you, the splendid Address with which you honoured me—an Address of which any man might be proud—bring home to me with humiliating distinctness a consciousness of ideals which I have striven for rather than attained. For I am conscious that to have deserved from you such praise and such appreciation, greater efforts, greater sacrifices, should have been made by me. I am conscious of many opportunities missed. I am conscious that in anything I have accomplished I have but done my duty; and the path of duty has been rendered so easy for me by the high standard of intellectual capacity, of justice and of loyalty for which the community of this Colony has ever been renowned, that I can feel no credit in having followed it. The honour which you have done me will be one of my proudest and most pleasant recollections. I can not adequately thank you; but I beg you to believe that so long as I live, there will remain graven in my memory the gratitude for which I can find no words. (Loud applause.)

The address, which bore the signatures of most of the British community as well as others, was enclosed in blue Morocco covers bound with brass. A handsome red wood case accompanied it, the whole being placed in a special campfire wood box.

THE CHINESE ADDRESS.

The Hon. Mr. Wei Yux, O.M.G., presented the Address from the Chinese community. Addressing Sir Henry, he said:—Sir,—In the unavoidable absence of my colleague, the Hon. Dr. Ho Kai, who is engaged in an important case at the Supreme Court, I am requested to present to you an Address from the Chinese community. The Address is composed in Chinese and was sent to Canton a fortnight ago to be embroidered on satin, but on account of the artistic nature of the work it will not be available till some little time after the Chinese New Year, when it will be forwarded to you. What we have here to-day is only a copy of the Address with an English translation annexed to it. As the Address expresses fully the sentiments of the leading members and representatives of the Chinese community, I need not repeat or dilate upon them. I shall simply express my entire endorsement of them and ask you, Sir, to be so kind and good as to accept it with our best wishes for a very happy and prosperous time to Lady May, yourself and family in your new home in Fiji. Before handing over to you this morocco case enclosing a copy of the Address, I will call upon Mr. Chan Kai Ming, the Chairman of the Tung Wa Hospital, to read the English translation of the Address.

Mr. Chan Kai Ming read the translation as follows:—

Address to Sir Francis Henry May, K.C.M.G., Colonial Secretary of Hongkong.

In all countries and in all ages the feelings of humanity remain the same, and there is the same regret at the departure of a friend. When one goes who has inspired affection in people and established his reputation among them, it is indeed hard to dismiss sorrow and to content oneself with the ordinary courtesies of a farewell, and never have the emotions been more deeply stirred on the occasion of a departure as when you, Sir, leave us on your promotion to the Governor of Fiji.

When you came as a Cadet, to the Far East and were stationed in South China for the purpose of studying Chinese and the Cantonese dialect. After six months' study you proceeded to Peking, where you applied yourself as closely to the language of the province. In a short space of time you mastered it, and at a later date published also a Guide to Cantonese, of the greatest value to students, surpassing indeed in many respects the books of previous authors.

On your return to Hongkong you held the office of Assistant Registrar-General, that of Assistant Colonial Secretary, and other responsible posts. You were then transferred to the position of Captain Superintendent of Police, and after occupying this office for a number of years you were promoted to be Colonial Secretary. On several occasions you have administered the Government, and your work as Governor has been characterised by precision and principle, and has given satisfaction and credit to the community.

Altogether can be made here to only some of your numerous achievements and to the conspicuous features only of your brilliant career. When you were Captain Superintendent of Police, gambling was rampant in the Colony, and many of whose duty it was to suppress the evil had been bribed to connive at it. You, Sir, heard of this, and without letting word or look divulge the secret, went yourself to seize the gamblers, and captured the principal offenders, and brought all who were guilty under the arm of the law.

One instance of your good feelings towards the Chinese, we recall that you were instrumental in obtaining the permanent suspension of the light and night-pass regulations. This concession has been a great boon to the business community, who up to the present day eulogise your action.

When the Colony was first attacked by the plague, rigid searches for plague cases were made by direction of the Government, and the work was entrusted to the soldiers and police. The whole Colony was greatly perturbed thereby, and the inhabitants, unable to endure such severity, commenced to remove their families, and as a consequence of the exodus, great damage was done to trade. It was your proposal that the officials should themselves personally supervise the work, and thus pacify the people and remove the cause for complaint. Your proposal was accepted, and thereafter you personally supervised the removal of plague patients, with the happy result that all abuses were removed and the Colony was restored to port peace.

On the New Territories being first brought under British rule, when confidence had not yet been established, but rebellious movements were frequent, you laid your police to the farthest borders and restored peace.

When the working classes have been beguiled, as has happened more than once, to go on strike and to riot, at the head of your police you have dispersed the agitation, and re-established peace and good order.

When the Sanitary authorities were enforcing the laws with a severity that aggrieved the people, and when those in charge of the work had failed, despite all their skill and toil, to attain success, you perceived where modification could be made, and accomplished your end without the law being contravened or the people dissatisfied in their expectations. Then, again, you were able to persevere your assistance in scouring plague and small hospitals for the Chinese, and additional cubicles in our houses.

During the eight or nine years you have been Rector of the Hongkong College of Medicine you have given your hearty support to that institution. Under your auspices no small number of students have completed their education and proved their usefulness; it is on the list of the Hongkong University, which is being built, and thus it can be said, with truth that you took a prominent share.

We have a saying that successful administration does not much depend on the strict observance of regulations; the essential is to get an acquaintance with the feelings of the people. We know that during your term of service you have made it your foremost aim to personally investigate the secret grievances of the people, and it is by this action that you learnt all their hidden feelings and received the unanimous approbation of all.

Your presence, Sir, is stately and austere; you are sparing of your word and of your smiles; you have presented a bold front to all difficulties; never have you humiliated your strength or shrunk from criticism; a man to be feared indeed and respected, impartial, just, tenacious, and yet under all there lies true kindness and sympathy.

His Majesty the King has now decreed your appointment to be Governor of Fiji, and the Colony loses a most able officer. It was with a shock that we received the news and it is with mixed emotions that we rejoice with you for your own advancement, and yet we are loath to let you go. It is with a heavy heart that we select to succeed you, and we will be a capable man, but on the occasion of your departure, may we not, we who have been united to you so closely and have benefited by your kindness, may we not say a word of farewell. Alas! you are leaving us; may a star of good omen shine on you and your family through your journey and may health and vigour abide with you as long as you live. (Loud applause.)

Sir Henry May replied:—Gentlemen,—I thank you most cordially for the honour you have done me in presenting me with an Address which is couched in terms of eulogy exceeding my deserts, but which I accept with sincere pleasure as an earnest of the goodwill existing between the officials of the Hongkong Government and the members of the Chinese community. (Applause.) During the quarter of a century which I have spent in this Colony I have seen a steady development in that community, which, influenced largely by the sagacious advice of those gentlemen who so worthily represent it on the Legislative Council, the Sanitary Board, the District Watchmen's Committee and the Committees of the Tung Wa Hospital, the Po Leung Kuk and the Dispensaries Committee, has assimilated much that the West can teach the East in matters of legislation, sanitation, medicine and education. (Applause.) The development has been slow and therefore sure; and it has, I am happy to say, brought with it an ever-increasing confidence in the Government of the Colony. You will remember, gentlemen, the famous passage in the Annals, in which the Master said that "The requisites of Government are that there be sufficiency of food, military equipment, and the confidence of the people in their ruler"; and how, when pressed by Tai Kung to say which of these requisites was the most indispensable, he replied that the least necessary was the military equipment, and after that the food; for said he:—"From old, death has been the lot of all men, but if the people have no faith in their rulers; there is no standing for the State." (Applause.) Confidence in the Government implies on the part of the people loyalty, obedience, sympathy with the aims and policy of the administration, and patience in awaiting the result of the measures taken by the administration for the furtherance of its policy: while on the part of the officials there must be, as Confucius says elsewhere:—"Reverend attention to business, sincerity, economy in expenditure, love for men, and the employment of the people at the proper seasons." And now, in taking leave of you, I am glad to think that there exists at the present time the fullest confidence between the Government and the Chinese community—(applause)—and it is my earnest hope that as time passes on, bringing further development, further progress, and increasing prosperity, that this confidence may "broaden down from precedent to precedent," gaining a deeper meaning with every succeeding year. (Hear, hear.) Gentlemen, I have the highest respect and admiration for the Chinese community. (Applause.) I wish it every prosperity, and it is with deep regret that I must now bid you good-bye. (Loud applause.)

PRESENTATION OF LADY MAY.

The presentation to Lady May of a magnificent diamond pendant, subscribed for by the community, then took place. The pendant was in the form of a Maltese cross, and its main feature was three large diamonds, the centre stone being two and three-quarters carats. The setting and chains were of platinum.

Mrs. Keswick, in making the presentation, said:—Your Excellency, Ladies and Gentlemen,—In the unavoidable absence of Lady Lugard, the honour of making this presentation has fallen upon me.

The following address, which was read by Mrs. Keswick, accompanied the gift:—

Lady May, we wish to express our regret at the severance of the many ties which have bound you so long to this community. The whole of your married life has been spent here and during all that time your influence for good has been widely felt. Those around you have always been happier and brighter for your presence. As a wife and mother you have set an example; as a friend you have been true and staunch; as a toiler for the welfare of others you have never spared yourself. In works of charity no appeal for your sympathy and support has ever been made in vain. We find it difficult to say in a few words all that we feel, but you may rest assured that our heartfelt wishes for your happiness accompany you to your new home. As parting we hope that you will wear this gift and that you will wear it as a memento of our affectionate regard.

LADY MAY'S REPLY.

LADY MAY, who was received with loud applause, replied as follows:—Mrs. Keswick, Ladies and Gentlemen,—I wish I could express to you all I feel. The words you have just read touch me most deeply, and are indeed much kinder than I deserve. The great love I have for Hongkong and its people is making it very hard to say "Good-bye," but I shall always look back on my life here with great joy, and whenever I wear this most beautiful gift it will recall to me my many kind friends. I thank you all from the bottom of my heart and wish you "Good-bye." (Applause.)

On the call of His Excellency the Governor three cheers and a "tiger" were given for Sir Henry and Lady May and family.

ADDRESS FROM THE SIKH COMMUNITY.

The Sikh community in Hongkong also presented an Address to Sir Henry May as follows:—

To His Excellency Sir Francis Henry May, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George.

May it please your Excellency,—We the members of the Committee of the Sikh Temple, Hongkong, beg to be permitted to accept on behalf of the small but not unimportant section of the community which we represent.

In the business life of this Colony the Sikhs play a small part, but they are largely represented in the service of the Government, both in the Army and in the Police Force, and are among the most loyal subjects of His Majesty the King Emperor.

Your Excellency's memory will always be revered by the local Sikh community both on account of your long association with the Hongkong Police and of the interest which you have taken in our happiness and welfare.

To your Excellency we are indebted for the free grant of the plot of land on which our Temple stands, which has been such a boon both to the Sikh residents and to those passing through the Colony. It has enabled us to pay proper attention to the observances of our religion, and also to offer hospitality to numbers of our fellow-countrymen, who would otherwise have suffered great hardships.

Through the earnest efforts of our religious leaders, hundreds of Sikhs have become abstainers from alcohol, which was once the ruin of so many good men.

The news of your Excellency's promotion has filled us with joy, though the joy is mixed with sorrow, when we think of the loss which the Colony will sustain on your Excellency's departure.

We desire from the bottom of our hearts, to tender to your Excellency our most sincere congratulations on the honour which has been conferred on you by His Gracious Majesty the King Emperor, and in bidding you and Lady May farewell, we pray for you long life and happiness, and confidently hope that you will rise to still greater heights in the Public Service, of which you are so bright an ornament.—We remain, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient servants.

THE MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE OF THE SIKH TEMPLE.

Signatories:—Bulaka Singh Subadar, H. K. & S. B. G. A.; Jomadar Lall Singh, Vice-President; Sunder Singh, Warder, Secretary; Nagina Singh, Assistant Surgeon; Nbander Singh Bhagat Singh, Nangal Singh, Nova Singh, Nshan Singh, Jagrat Singh, Awan Singh, Vassimal Assomal, Dhanamal Chellaram, H. Nanchan Nal, K. A. J. Chotimall & Co., Bishan Singh, Bhagat Singh, Kai Singh, Pohnomal Brothers, and four others.

Sir Henry May replied:—Gentlemen,—I thank you most cordially for the address which you have presented to me and for your flattering reference to the small services which I have been able to render to the local Sikh community. I entertain the greatest respect for that community with which as Captain Superintendent of Police it was for many years my privilege to be intimately associated. I wish the Sikh community, all success and prosperity, and it is with sincere regret that I take leave of you.

THE CANTON CHRISTIAN COLLEGE.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES OF THE MIDDLE SCHOOL.

A crowd of nearly 500 Chinese and foreign guests made the trip down the river last Thursday to attend the various exercises incident to the graduation of the Class of 1911 of the High or Middle School. The school had furnished lanterns and boats to carry the guests to and from the pier of the school, about three miles from Shamoen. This crowd was well handled, and given a good time in spite of the coldness of the day.

In the morning there was a football game on the athletic grounds. Then there were exhibitions of student work for inspection in the main building, Martin Hall. These included English and Chinese essays and examination papers, drawings and paintings in water colour, architectural drawings and copyings, Chinese and English writing and a display of carpentry and sloyd work with the tools with which the students worked, both foreign and native tools. Guests were also taken to see the school garden worked by the students, chickens, rabbits, etc., raised by the students, the dining-room, the shop conducted and run by the students, etc.

At one o'clock tea was served to the Chinese guests at the houses of the Chinese Head Master and the Principal of the Hongkong Grammar School (a Higher Elementary School preparatory to the Middle School run as part of the general system, Kwong of schools). An address was delivered to the guests by Mr. Chung Wing, the Chinese Head Master. Mr. Chung has been successful during the past year or two in raising enough money among the Chinese friends of the school to build one large brick and concrete dormitory and the first half of a second which is now being erected. The generous and enthusiastic support of the Chinese people testify as well as the large number of students to the character of the work done in the schools.

The formal commencement exercises took place in the assembly room of the main building at two o'clock. The President, Dr. C. K. Edmunds, presided. The hall and the verandahs were filled to overflowing.

The programme was as follows:—

1. Opening prayer by Rev. Mr. Fisher, of -hek Lung.
2. "God Save the State," sung by the students and audience.
3. Chinese Graduation Oration, "College Spirit" by Mr. Ko Koon Tin.
4. Address in English, by Rev. Edgar Dewdney, on China's present need for men of education and character and religious fervour.
5. Piano Solo, by Mrs. Edmunds.
6. Address in Chinese, by Mr. N.-Chik Poon, B.L., in which he showed clearly the needs of a government more or less for men.

7. English Graduation Oration, "The Activities of our School," by Mr. Lai Po Ian.
 8. "Ye Servants of God," sung by the students and audience.
 9. The presentation of prizes to students of all the schools connected with the Canton Christian College, by Mr. Chung Wing Kwong, the Head of the Chinese Department.
 10. The presentation of the graduating class to the President to receive their certificates, by Mr. H. B. Graybill, the Principal of the Middle School.
 11. Closing prayer, by Rev. James Henry.
- After this was served to the foreign guests and a musical was given in the home of Mr. Fuson.

THE CHINESE IN EASTERN TIBET.

THE POSITION OF RIMA.

Private advices state that Chinese troops have occupied Rima, "beyond the northern frontier of Assam," as an outpost. It is further remarked that this operation probably indicates the complete subjugation of Eastern Tibet from Batang, thus securing the safety of communication through the Kham country.

We may point out that the occupation of Rima was first noted in The Times on July 8. On that occasion it was stated that Rima was "at the head of the Lohit Valley in Kachin territory, and within the British boundary." The statement is confirmed by the map of Northern Burma in the atlas which accompanies the "Imperial Gazetteer of India," which clearly shows Rima within the British border. The now suggestion that Rima is not in British territory appears to require further explanation.—The Times

DISTRICT SCHOOLS PRIZE DISTRIBUTION.

At the Yauwatt School on Saturday Mr. E. A. Irving, Director of Education, presided at the annual prize distribution of the Yauwatt, Wanchai, Saiyungpun, Anglo-Tibetan, Taiwong, and Mongkok District Schools.

Mr. Moons, in his report on the Yauwatt School, said:—The staff has undergone considerable change during the year. In May Mr. Curwen, the Headmaster, was appointed to the Wanchai, and Mr. James was transferred to this school. During September and October Mr. James was absent on sick leave. Later he was transferred to Queen's College and I was appointed Headmaster. The school year commenced with 215 on the roll and an average attendance of 174. As we were then in excess of the limit only a few applications were accepted. All through the year the numbers remained much the same. The highest average attendance was during May, when it reached 207. At the close of the year we had 174 on the roll and an average attendance of 181. The school has been as full as possible with the present accommodation and the limit of 40 to each class. The amount collected in fees during the year was $5,417, an increase of $400 on that for 1909.

The work of the school throughout the year has been good, steady progress being made in the majority of English subjects. The composition papers were unusually good, especially in Class 4. Mathematics also shows some improvement on the work done last year. Hygiene has been given the usual attention and the results are very satisfactory. The scholarship scheme having been reorganized, and separate scholarships awarded to each school, Yauwatt receives three to Queen's College, two of three years each and one of $30. In addition to the Scholarships to Queen's College, Government has awarded one of one year to the head boy in each class except class four. The headmaster reported favourably on the interest taken and the progress made in sport, and concluded by thanking the staff for the able manner in which they had performed their duties. (Applause.)

Mr. Curwen, in reading the Report on the Wanchai School, said:—The past year's work has not been marked by any great changes. Possibly the greatest was the transfer of Mr. Young Hee at the end of April to Queen's College. Briefly, I would like to point out the growth of the District Schools since 1903. In that year the total fees collected in the three District Schools amounted to $1,507, whereas the total fees of this school alone last year totalled $8,976 and of the whole three $25,000. Comparing the attendance, the average for the year was 1903 was under 200, whereas the average for Wanchai alone was 300, and for the combined schools 300. The average attendance at the Wanchai School was 292. This is slightly less than last year and is due to the fact that now a master is only allowed to teach forty pupils. This is a great improvement and will make for greater efficiency in the future. The fees have increased by $2,445, the total being $8,976, and unless the School is enlarged, or the fees increased, this amount, I think, will stand for some time. Football is the popular pastime. Two boys went to the Nankai Exhibition and assisted in winning the Football Cup, competed for by Schoolboys drawn from many parts of China. The staff have worked well and conscientiously, and I judge by the results of the annual examination the work seems to have been performed thoroughly and efficiently. In conclusion I may say that I am thoroughly satisfied with the year's work and I trust the forthcoming one will be as successful. (Applause.)

Mr. James, in his report on the Saiyungpun School, said:—For reasons which are easily explained the attendance has fallen from an average of 403 to one of 238. Fees, however, have increased from $9,152 to $10,438, an increase of 14 per cent.

The laying of a uniform fee of $3, which takes effect from reopening next term should assist materially in readjusting the attendance. Several changes in the staff were made. Mr. Barlow was transferred to the Education Office in May, but he was not until September that Mr. Hamilton, who was appointed as his successor, commenced duties. Other transfers of English teaching masters occurred. The customary bathing and launch parties took place during the summer. The railway trips to the frontier was an innovation which was much enjoyed. A team was entered for the Hygiene Competition, but the results have not yet been published. There are eight, free of all charges in attendance; three of these Scholarships expire at the end of the current month. Thirty-six boys entered Queen's College, and 12 left for schools in America. From the results of the term I believe that the School is up to its usual standard of efficiency. Our thanks are due to Mr. Li Ping, who very kindly presented two silver watches as special prizes for good conduct. (Applause.)

Mr. BISHOP, in his third annual report on the English School for Indians, was pleased to say that the daily average attendance for the past year showed an increase of 60 per cent, over that of the previous one. Seven boys had made the full attendance. For the first time a team was entered for the Schools Hygiene Competition. Annual and half-yearly examinations were held and the results communicated to parents. It was impossible to raise a football team, as many of the scholars lived too far away, but those who lived in the eastern district regularly enjoyed games at football and cricket.

Mr. Irving, who on rising was received with applause, said the teachers, the ladies and gentlemen present, and the boys would be as sorry as he was that his Excellency was unable to attend to present the prizes. But all knew the reason of his absence. Sir Henry May was leaving that morning, and his Excellency had to go to see him off. It was a case of divided duties and divided pleasures, and the school had to give way before Sir Henry May. It was not necessary for him to add how sorry all were that Sir Henry was going. After the last reception they had heard, Mr. Irving felt that he could only preside with exceeding reluctance, for he was "treading on somewhat dangerous ground. If he pointed to the fact that the schools had been successful in their examinations, he was pointing to the moral showing how the teachers "rammed it in," rammed it in, pushed it in and crunched it in." Nevertheless, he had to go through with it. In reviewing briefly the history of the school for the year 1910, the speaker stated that at the beginning of that year, the fees charged were raised from the $2 to $3, and in exceptional cases to $4. For that increase in fees there had been some increase in the staff, and from the point of view of the parents who paid the fees, what was equally satisfactory was that there was a very marked decrease in the number of boys under one teacher was to say, the number of boys under one teacher was very severely limited, and never exceeded forty. Therefore, each pupil, instead of getting a sixtieth part of the teacher's attention, got a fortieth part, and thus the parent of the pupil got more for his money. He thought the result of this change had been very beneficial to the schools, and he had exceedingly good grounds to enable him to form this opinion in the scholarship examinations of boys in the top classes. Mr. Irving dwelt on the value of the Government scholarships, and stated that of the 54 who entered for these from the district schools no less than fifty passed the test which admitted them into the upper school at Queen's College, and this, he thought, was very satisfactory. Another very satisfactory thing about the results of these examinations was that the opinion of the examining independent masters concerned almost entirely with the opinion of the school masters as to which were the best boys. That went to show that the school masters were very good judges as to which of the boys ought to get scholarships. He could not help laying emphasis on this point, because he had received a number of anonymous letters, in which the writers pointed out that the masters knew nothing about the matter. Such letters were exceedingly improper, and in an English public school would be considered odiously bad form. He could not help thinking they were not the work of school boys at all, but of irresponsible and malicious people outside. (Applause.) Mr. Irving spoke of the prospects afforded the boys by the establishment of a University. If they reached that goal and continued to work hard they would not regret it, for there was an enormous demand for educated persons in China compared to the supply. In conclusion the speaker wished the boys very happy holidays and hoped they would return to school in good form at the beginning of next term. (Applause.)

BRITISH INVESTMENTS ABROAD.

A HUGE TOTAL.

An indifferently attended meeting of the Fellows of the Royal Statistical Society was held last month at the rooms of the Royal Society of Arts to hear a paper from Mr. George Paish (the Editor of the Statistics) on "Great Britain's Capital Investments in Individual Colonial and Foreign Countries." Lord George Hamilton, who presided, said that Mr. Paish was well known as a writer upon economic subjects and a gentleman of great knowledge and research.

Mr. Paish said that his investigations had now been brought up to the date of 1910. In the three years since 1907 Great Britain had supplied other lands with a large amount of additional capital. In 1908 the amount of new capital issues in London on behalf of Colonial Foreign Governments, municipalities, railways, banks, mining and joint-stock industrial companies was $145,000,000. In 1909 it was $182,000,000, and for 1910, to date, $188,000,000, a total in the three years of $515,000,000. A very large portion of that total, viz. $275,000,000, had been raised for railway construction. The great income which British investors were deriving from their investments in other lands was small in comparison with the total income they might ultimately secure from those investments since a great deal of the capital would not become fully productive for many years. It was no exaggeration to state that Great Britain's enterprise in placing her surplus of new capital, wherever the money could be profitably employed, had been one of the great forces which had made for the increased prosperity of the human race in modern times. The country which had received the largest amount of British capital was the United States, where we had been placing capital steadily since the days of Queen Elizabeth. With the exception of the United States our greatest investments were in the Indian Empire. Of these Canada had received the largest amount, and the rate at which the British people were increasing their investments in the Dominion was phenomenally rapid. The "visible" amount already placed there was $373,000,000, and new supplies were flowing in at the rate of $30,000,000 per annum. The investment of the British people in South Africa was also of vast extent, reaching $351,000,000, of which $125,000,000 was applicable to mining concerns. The loans to Government there had been mainly spent on railway construction. The amount of visible capital we had invested in the Indian Empire was $168,000,000, the larger portion of which had again been expended upon the building of railways. Never had Great Britain had so much new capital available for investment in the Colonies and in India, and never had she supplied money so freely to the other nations of the Empire as she had done in the past few years. The aggregate of our investments in Colonial countries and in India now reached $1,554,000,000, of which $1,100,000,000 had been placed in Canada, Australia, and South Africa. The aggregate of our investments in foreign countries was $2,638,000,000, of which 42 per cent. was in the United States. The total sum supplied to the Empire by Great Britain, quite apart from private capital, was $3,192,000,000, of which 53 per cent. was in the Americas, 16 per cent. in Asia, 14 per cent. in Africa, 12 per cent. in Australia, and 6 per cent. in Europe.

Sir Edgar Speyer paid a tribute to the value of the paper read by Mr. Paish, who, on the motion of Sir Richard Martin, was unanimously accorded a cordial vote of thanks.

FAREWELL TO SIR PELHAM WARREN.

A POPULAR CONSULT.

The farewell banquet to Sir Pelham Warren, K.C.M.G., the retiring British Consul-General, was given under the auspices of the Municipal Council at the Shanghai Club on Saturday evening. Nearly two hundred residents were present. Mr. D. Landale, Chairman of the Council, presided. Sir Pelham Warren sat upon his right, and Sir Haviland de Saumarez on his left.

It is doubtful, says the N.C. Daily News, whether any retiring British Consul-General has ever received so many spontaneous and hearty wishes as that accorded to Sir Pelham Warren. His health was honoured again and again, followed by cheers and the singing of "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Sir PELHAM WARREN, in the course of his response to the toast of the evening, said:—Gentlemen,—It is close upon forty-four years since I came to China. In that time I have seen many changes and I am not sure that all those changes have been for the better. (Hear, hear.) I am not sure that the old times were not fully more pleasant and better than the present. I do not consider that it could take an extremely wise and far-seeing man to venture an opinion either upon current or future events in China. I do not feel inclined to pose as that wise man. I do not wish to fill the rôle either of an Isaiah or a Jeremiah. (Laughter.) My position is something betwixt and between. Education has done a great deal for the Chinese already, and in future I have no doubt it will do still more, but I am not quite certain that our interests in China have been improved thereby. (Applause.) Still, gentlemen, we must not forget that it is our mission to push education and civilization in all parts of the world, and to disregard our own interests with the utmost unselfishness. (Laughter.) Another change that I have noticed of late is that the Chinese official is more solemn than he used to be in my young days. I can recall some thirty years ago, that in my interviews with these gentlemen, there was more chaff interchanged than business done. But still the business was got through somehow, and as a rule far more satisfactorily than at the present day. I recall on one occasion, on which I went to see a high official in the South, to discuss matters of exchange and coin, and all sorts of matters. I told him the parable of the unjust judge and the widow woman, an old story, which, I daresay, some of you have heard before. I asked him if he understood it, and he replied that he did. I said, "Very well, you are the judge. I am the widow, and I am coming to see you to-morrow." He said that he would rather I did not come, that his visits were somewhat expensive, and that his stock of champagne was running short. We finished up all the cases (not the cases of champagne) and the outstanding claims. But, gentlemen, I will not weary you with more of my youthful reminiscences. My old years out here have passed all too quickly. They have passed so quickly that I can hardly realize the fact that they have passed and that the end has come. My last few years, the last ten years, have been passed among you in Shanghai, and thanks to the extreme cordiality and friendly relations which have always existed between my colleagues and myself, the sympathetic attitude of the Council and the general hearty good-fellowship of the whole community, these have been the pleasantest years of my life. They will remain in my memory as long as life lasts, though at the present moment the recollection of them adds considerably to the regret, the extreme regret, with which I now have to say to you farewell, farewell. (Loud applause.)

When Sir Pelham Warren resumed his seat the audience again rose and sang, "For he's a jolly good fellow." In response to this demonstration Sir Pelham said:—Gentlemen,—I thank you, I cannot say any more.

A tribute by Dr. Amos P. Wilder, the American Consul-General,—"The silvery-tongued orator" evoked another demonstration, the company singing "For he's a jolly good fellow" in honour of Dr. Wilder.

HAMBURG LETTER.

[WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR THE "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS."]

December 22nd.

Although the results of the census on the 5th inst. have not yet been officially published, much less analysed and tabulated, it appears from what has so far transpired that there has again been a very considerable increase in the population of the empire, chiefly, however, in the towns which continue to attract the "country" people. Hamburg now numbers over 936,000 inhabitants in the city alone, whilst the population of the entire State is close upon 1,100,000. The rapid expansion of the trade of this port has led to an equally rapid development of places in the neighbourhood; the town of Wilhelmshaven, for instance, situated on the islands in the Elbe, which up to the year 1860 were almost entirely devoted to agriculture and cattle grazing, has gradually become an industrial suburb of Hamburg with great ship-building yards and all kinds of factories. According to the latest returns its population is 28,231 compared with 22,360 five years ago, 16,640 in 1900, 8,765 in 1890, 5,881 in 1880, an increase of nearly 60 per cent. in fifty years.

Hamburg, which occupies a more independent position, having more of a trade of its own, can boast of almost as rapid a growth; its population, which in 1864 did not exceed 13,180 souls, had in 1880 risen to 19,071, in 1890 to 35,031, in 1900 to 49,153, in 1905 to 53,676, and has now according to the latest returns reached the figure of 67,012.

It is much to be regretted that, as the towns grow in size and population the birth-rate should tend to decrease. Carefully worked out statistics, compiled by order of the Prussian government, show that, whilst there is, if anything, an increase in the number of births in the country, the rate in town has been steadily falling off during the last thirty years, the average proportion of children born to every thousand women of child-bearing age in the quinquennial periods from 1875 to 1905 being, respectively, 174.6, 165.35, 163.97, 161.85 and 154.83. The figures for Berlin are very much lower, having declined from 149.11 in 1875-1880 to 119.59 in the following five years and subsequently to 106.23, 96.73 and 88.78. It may safely be assumed that a similar state of affairs exists with slight local modifications all over the North of Germany, if not in the whole of the German empire.

A writer in "Schmoller's Jahrbuch for 1910" has taken the trouble to inquire into the bearing of the numerical preponderance of women over men on the chances of marriage, and has come to the conclusion that it is more apparent than real. In the first place, the surplus in Germany is becoming less every year, having declined from 892,683 in 1900 to 871,916 in 1905 (the figures of the census in the beginning of the present month are not yet available), and in the second, that, taking the number of women between the age of 18 and 30 and of men between 21 and 35, or say, from 15 to 35 and 21 to 40, the surplus is hardly any difference, at most perhaps 200,000. The inquiry further discloses the somewhat remarkable fact that women above thirty years of age seem to give the preference to men whose juniors, thus reducing the prospects of their younger sisters. It is not until after, what may be called the marrying age, that the excess of women over men assumes formidable proportions—being then about two millions and a half, viz., 930,433 spinsters and 1,573,095 widows or women divorced from their husbands. It appears that in large towns, such as Berlin and Dresden, the poorer districts have a smaller surplus of women than the wealthier ones, which can only in part be attributed to the greater number of female domestics employed in the latter.

BEST SUGAR.

The Imperial Statistical Bureau in Berlin has published the following estimate of the probable yield of the beet crop in this country for the season beginning on September 1st of this year. Of 354 sugar mills that have been in operation this autumn, compared with 355 last year, 48 have ceased working at the end of last month. Up to that date 12,298,760 tons of beet had been ground up, and it is supposed that 3,259,570 more will pass through the mills before the close of the season, in which case the total would reach 15,558,330, tons against 13,892,065 last year, thus showing a surplus of 2,666,265 tons. According to the returns of the German mills the production in the months of September and November has been 949,520 and 1,624,218, tons, respectively, compared with 840,700 and 1,521,690 last season, the yield of mocharine matter thus amounting to 14.83 per cent. against 13.94 per cent. Assuming an increase in the yield during the next nine months equal to the average of the past five seasons the percentage would rise to 15.94 against 15.11. At this rate a crop of 15,558,330 tons of beet may be expected to produce 2,450,000 tons of sugar, to which have to be added about 90,000 tons turned out by the refineries of molasses, so that the total of raw sugar likely to reach 2,570,000 tons, or 532,600 more than last season. The takings of the refineries in November amounted to 144,917 tons against 131,935 last season and to 366,987 against 345,381 in the first quarter. Stocks at the end of November are estimated at 1,397,738 tons against 1,128,757 at the same time last year. No wonder that the tone of the different markets is dull and that prices have declined nearly 50 per cent. since the great boom last year.

The trial of the two British officers, Captain Trench and Lieutenant Brandon, who were arrested on a charge of espionage last August, took place yesterday before the Supreme Court at Leipzig. According to the reports in the daily papers it seems to have been conducted with great fairness and courtesy to the accused, and as both of them pleaded guilty it terminated the same evening. The sentence pronounced, four years' detention in a fortress, can hardly be called severe, its length being explained by the necessity of allowing the prisoners time to forget, part at any rate, of the valuable information they have succeeded in gathering.

HALL'S DISTEMPER

HAS THESE GREAT ADVANTAGES IN ADDITION:

It is made in a wide range of 70 colours, including rich dark as well as light shades.
It contains no lead, therefore ceilings coated with white or tinted Hall's Distemper do not turn black with sulphur.

It sets the hardest of any article yet offered, and neither cracks, blisters, nor peels off.
It is washable three weeks after being applied.

It is a strong disinfectant and should be used in all fever or infectious cases as recommended by the medical faculty.

It is non-poisonous and clean in working.
